

Nursing Today: Travel & Registry

Let's make an honest statement, travel is not quite where it was during the golden years of better economical times. We have all had to be flexible on our ideal assignments, and have worked harder to increase our value through more certifications, quicker responses, shift time/length flexibility, and just intensifying our competitive edge. BUT, there is still a shortage of nurses – a major shortage at that! And as we have talked about before, hospitals are semi-cutting back on use of travelers simply because cutting back in any and all areas for businesses is financially welcome in these times!

Here's the good news though folks, registry is where it's at! As stated, there is still a shortage of nurses! And the world won't wake up tomorrow and no longer need healthcare. There is still a dyer need for you! Currently, picking up registry provides limitless options to work your desired number of shifts, and then some! Whether you or a friend is a staff nurse looking to pick up shifts at neighboring facilities, or a traveler looking to do so around your current area, there are shifts available and many needs! The process for getting cleared for a facility is a relatively simple one; one which any of Response 1's skilled recruiters can walk you through and guide you every step of the way!

We have a 24-hour registry line with needs flooding in. If you or a friend is interested in picking up extra shifts, don't hesitate to call and ask us any questions, or address any concerns. No matter if you are on a travel contract with Response 1, or even with another company, we are highly competent in placing you in the facilities of your choice and working with your schedule. We are excited about the numerous opportunities out there right now to provide you with all the work you want!
